Love Poems from God 2002-09-24 poetry has always been my first love ever since i studied the works of the famous international poets at school i am originally from pakistan an area rich in culture and literature and belong to a literary family myself i have been dabbling in limericks and poetry since childhood and have won prizes in literary competitions as well as the first prize in an international short story writing contest life has dealt me some hard knocks and poetry provides an outlet for the rainbow of my emotions i do not wish to sound pompous or pedantic but i feel that in the fast changing landscape of the world traditional values are being pushed into the background by those who are chasing the superficial mirage of materialism poetry to me is a reflection of the emotional moods of our lives along with dr iqbal and rumi the famous persian poet sa di has been a source of guidance and inspiration to me in his bouquet of flowers he says if you the truth always speak and righteousness you ever seek this wealth will certainly help you it will be your companion true some of my poems are outpourings of nostalgia for my homeland written when i lived abroad as in rumi s exordium on the lament of the reed in which he says hearken to this reed forlorn breathing even though twas torn from its rushy bed a strain of impassioned love and pain i started by writing these poems more as a source of guidance for my children and grandchildren so that they could open the book and find the message they might be looking for or to get the right perspective on values as i wrote my verses seemed to evolve into a politically correct universal message life does not come with an instruction manual but i hope that this book will be able to help the younger generation in particular even in the smallest way to acquire a spiritual perception of life four new poems have been added in this edition of which two are about the pandemic that has recently swept our world

Poems of West East (Classic Reprint) 2015-07-19 part of the rich legacy of the middle east is a poetic record stretching back five millennia this unparalleled repository of knowledge across different languages cultures and religions allows us to examine continuity and change in human expression from the beginnings of writing to the present day in warfare and poetry in the middle east leading scholars draw upon this legacy to explore the ways in which poets from the third millennium bc to the present day have responded to effects of war the contributors deal with material in a wide variety of languages including sumerian hittite akkadian biblical and modern hebrew and classical and contemporary arabic and range from the sumerian lament on the destruction of ur and the assyrian conquest of jerusalem to the al r miyy t of the poet and warrior prince ab fir s al amd n the popular arabic epics and romances that form the siyar to the contemporary poetry of hamas and hezbollah some of the poems are heroic in tone celebrating victory and the prowess of warriors and soldiers others reflect keenly on the pity and destruction of warfare on the grief and suffering that war causes the result is a work that provides a unique reflection upon the ways in which this most violent and pervasive of human activities has been reflected in different cultures the history of war begins in the middle east the earliest reported conflict in human history was fought between the neighbouring city states of lagash and umma in ancient iraq at a time when the middle east seems to be permanently at war and wracked by violence it is salutary to look back at the ancient roots of modern attitudes and to see that in the past as in the present these attitudes are much more varied and the emotions more subtle than often realised
