a philosophical and legal argument for equal access to good lawyers and other legal resources should your risk of wrongful conviction depend on your wealth we wouldn't dream of passing a law to that effect but our legal system which permits the rich to buy the best lawyers enables wealth to affect legal outcomes clearly justice depends not only on the substance of laws but also on the system that administers them in equal justice frederick wilmot smith offers an account of a topic neglected in theory and undermined in practice justice in legal institutions he argues that the benefits and burdens of legal systems should be shared equally and that divergences from equality must issue from a fair procedure he also considers how the ideal of equal justice might be made a reality least controversially legal resources must sometimes be granted to those who cannot afford them more radically we may need to rethink the centrality of the market to legal systems markets in legal resources entrench pre-existing inequalities allocate injustice to those without means and enable the rich to escape the law's demands none of this can be justified many people think that markets in health care are unjust it may be time to think of legal services in the same way this book defends an original and pluralist theory of when and why discrimination wrongs people starting from actual legal cases in which claimants have alleged wrongful discrimination by other people or by the state sophia moreau argues that we can best understand these people s complaints by thinking of them as complaints about different ways in which they have not been treated as equals in their societies in particular through unfair subordination through the violation of their right to a particular deliberative freedom or through the denial to them of access to a basic good that is a good that this person must have access to if they are to be and to be seen as an equal in their society the book devotes a chapter to each of these wrongs exploring in detail what unfair subordination consists of what deliberative freedoms are and when each of us has a right to them and what it means to deny someone access to a basic good the author explains why these wrongs are each distinctive but are each a different way of failing to treat some people as the equals of others finally the author argues that both the state and we as individuals have a duty to treat others as equals in these three specific senses
