the african slave trade beginning in the fifteenth century brought african languages into contact with spanish and portuguese resulting in the africans gradual acquisition of these languages in this 2004 book john lipski describes the major forms of afro hispanic language found in the iberian peninsula and latin america over the last 500 years as well as discussing pronunciation morphology and syntax he separates legitimate forms of afro hispanic expression from those that result from racist stereotyping to assess how contact with the african diaspora has had a permanent impact on contemporary spanish a principal issue is the possibility that spanish in contact with speakers of african languages may have creolized and restructured in the caribbean and perhaps elsewhere permanently affecting regional and social varieties of spanish today the book is accompanied by the largest known anthology of primary afro hispanic texts from iberia latin america and former afro hispanic contacts in africa and asia
