a groundbreaking tour of the human mind that illuminates the biological nature of our inner worlds and emotions through gripping moving and at times harrowing clinical stories a scintillating and moving analysis of the human brain and emotions nature beautifully connects the inner feelings within all human beings to deep insights from modern psychiatry and neuroscience robert lefkowitz nobel laureate karl deisseroth has spent his life pursuing truths about the human mind both as a renowned clinical psychiatrist and as a researcher creating and developing the revolutionary field of optogenetics which uses light to help decipher the brain s workings in projections he combines his knowledge of the brain s inner circuitry with a deep empathy for his patients to examine what mental illness reveals about the human mind and the origin of human feelings how the broken can illuminate the unbroken through cutting edge research and gripping case studies from deisseroth s own patients projections tells a larger story about the material origins of human emotion bridging the gap between the ancient circuits of our brain and the poignant moments of suffering in our daily lives the stories of deisseroth s patients are rich with humanity and shine an unprecedented light on the self and the ways in which it can break down a young woman with an eating disorder reveals how the mind can rebel against the brain s most primitive drives of hunger and thirst an older man smothered into silence by depression and dementia shows how humans evolved to feel not only joy but also its absence and a lonely uighur woman far from her homeland teaches both the importance and challenges of deep social bonds illuminating literary and essential projections is a revelatory immensely powerful work it transforms our understanding not only of the brain but of ourselves as social beings giving vivid illustrations through science and resonant human stories of our yearning for connection and meaning in december 1961 indian troops marched into goa putting an end to over 450 years of portuguese rule the longest spell of colonialism on the subcontinent and goa became part of the indian union in popular imagination however goa has remained a place not quite india and stereotypes about goa and goans abound maria aurora couto s unique blend of biography memoir and social history brings us the goa behind the beaches and booze culture that is projected for the tourist and which has unfortunately come to define goa for the vast majority outside the state starting with an account of the immediate aftermath of liberation couto goes back and forth in time to examine the fundamental transformations in goan society from 1510 when afonso de albuquerque conquered goa up to the present drawing upon the experiences of her own family and those of others both hindu and catholic she writes of the influences that have touched all goans the luso indian culture conversion and the inquisition political and cultural changes in europe such as the french revolution and the ideals of republicanism folk traditions music and the konkani language and ultimately freedom and integration with india in the process she reveals how goa which combines the best of traditional and cosmopolitan lifestyles has evolved into india s twenty first century model of economic development and communal harmony written with sensitivity insight and scholarship goa a daughter s story is at once expansive and intimate a moving narrative about home the village and the world in which the author crosses the boundaries between history and memory truth and imagination to evoke personal and community experience it is as much an appraisal of goa s past as it is an examination of its present and a vision for its future
